

Tuition Scale to determine for reduced tuition for 2022-23

These guidelines provide the basis for establishing a Sliding Fee Scale for the Fort Recovery Public Preschool program. Children whose family's income are at or below the 100% poverty level attend the preschool program at no charge. Tuition fees for families with an income above 100% of the federal poverty level are set locally. Tuition is free for families whose house-hold income is below the 100% of the poverty guidelines, $60.00 or less below the 200% guidelines and $195.00 for above the 200% guidelines for a 4-day per week program. *Tuition rate is subject to change and is based on the number of days in attendance.

*This is based on the annual family gross income (before taxes are taken out of paycheck). Add $9,080 to the yearly income for each additional member for family units with more than 8 members. Find the number of people in your household in the left column. Now slide to the right to the second column. If your household income is less than the listed amount you could qualify for a reduced tuition amount. The third and fourth column list the government income levels by monthly or weekly if you need to look at your paystub to figure your income. Using the most recent tax forms is a great tool to determine your total household income but staff can also use year to date amounts on your pay stub.
